

COPING WITH A TRAGEDY

3 Key elements will help you survive a tragedy:

- Healthy coping skills
- Health support system
- Healthy perspective

While things will never be the same as they were before the event, we can find strength to recover.

Indicators of Intense Stress

If you are concerned about the intensity of these symptoms in your life or someone you care about, please seek the care of a physician or a mental health professional. Call a trusted friend to talk through it. Reach out to clergy or family members.

Physical Symptoms: Emotional Symptoms:

ChillsFearFatigueGuiltNauseaPanicDizzinessDenialWeaknessAnxietyRapid Heart RateIrritabilityDifficulty BreathingShock

Shock Symptoms Feeling Overwhelmed Loss of Emotional Control

Sadness

Cognitive Symptoms: Behavioral Symptoms:

Confusion Withdrawal Nightmares Inability to Rest

Hypervigilance Changes in Social Activity
Intrusive Images Loss of or Increase in Appetite
Poor Problem Solving Increased Alcohol Consumption

Poor Attention/Memory Poor Concentration

Disorientation

Here are some ways to bring order and calmness after the chaos and confusion that follows a natural disaster:

- Retell your story
- Reconnect in relationships
- Rebuild your routines
- Reach out with your faith or spiritual connection

If you need support, contact:
Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS)
@ 407-823-2811